

Stewart Castledine will be back at Adams Park on Saturday to entertain guests in the Legends Lounge with a Q&A ahead of Wanderers' League One battle with Huddersfield Town (k.o. 3pm).

The former midfielder (pictured, far left) was part of the Chairboys squad that reached the FA Cup semi-final 25 years ago, and will have divided loyalties this weekend with his son Leo lining up against the Blues for the Terriers, having joined on loan from Chelsea in the summer.

Leo was actually a mascot for Wycombe as a child, walking out with Stewart's former Wimbledon team-mate Gareth Ainsworth for a game against Accrington Stanley at Adams Park.

The Legends Lounge is close to selling out this Saturday, with just a handful of places available, so see below for the full details including how to book your place.
